ten-millon-dollar industriat combination was thought a pretty big thing. That was, of course, before the formation of the steel trust. Now, however, the statisticians place any capitalization under that figure under the common head of "smaller corporations," when they come to make up their tables. To show the growth of these industrials, despite the prosecution of trusts, it is worth noting that in 1910 the capitalization of industrial and mercantile corporations having a minimum of $10,000,000 aggregated $430,125,000, while for the first eleven months of 1911 the total is $341,343,400, very nearly twice as much. One of the most interesting reports brokers have heard recently was circulated among the houses which do business in puts and calls. The governors of the stock exchange, it is said, were considering a proposition to prohibit all members from selling privileges. Their reason was that the Henning and Van Schaick failures had been due in part, to the selling of puts and calls and that many other small houses had gone into that branch of the brokerage business. None of the officers of the exchange commented on the report, but it was credited in places where puts and calls are dealt in.

In the old days, before Russell Sage gave up the business as too hazardous, dealing in puts and calls constituted an important department of the brokerage business. Then it gradually lansed from stock exchange practice and most of the speculators who wanted puts and calls, whether as a speculation or a hedge, bought them in the London market. The business of dealing in privilege is conducted much more scientifically in London than it ever has been here, and the arbitrage houses did a profitable business with this branch of the London market alone.

It is only within the last year that sales of privileges have again been taken up by more than a few stock exchange.

A great way to be a profitable to the profitable of the profitabl chromatance that regular commission business was none too good. A great many houses have found it a profitable addingt to the regular brokerage business. Eccause so many of them are engaged in it the governors will probably not proscribe it altogether. However, it is considered probable that regulations will be bassed in the endeavor to have the business conducted as securely as it is to England.

Do Merchants Favor Trust Law? At an executive session of the com-mittee on the Sherman anti-trust law of the New York Board of Trade and Trans-portation, held recently it was decided to conduct a cateful canvass of the at-titude of New York merchants and busi-ness men generally on the existing federal in the styles of dressing the the grand ladaes whose beauty much to the attraction of era for everyhold shampoor once a week keeps soft and phable and the hair can and heautifully historia, if the powder can be dusted on acfi thoroughly brushed out to an especially elaborate coif-lesired. The committee, it is asserted, has no prejudices in conducting the investigation. It is set forth, however, that something must be done with reference to the trust laws of the country inasmich as trace generally is being hampered, and that the trusts when originally formed operated under the existing laws at their period of birth, whereas at present they are not extain as to their legal rights and limitations.

The membership of the investigating committee includes some of the leading manufacturers, merchants and representative business men of this city.

We work to advance the leading stocks, like Steel and I nion Pacifia and Reading and after a while needs begin to complain. We are not making a market. It is no market. We are merchy gambling in a few stocks. Way dosen t the market broaden? Why is the Irading all in two or three stocks?

Club Plan Makes Big Saving Possible

The low price and easy terms are made possible by the collective or cooperative club plan of selling. You join with others in wholesale buying. There are no dues, no red tape and no waiting; you don't even know the other club members. You simply join whichever club suits your convenience, make the initial club payment of $5 or more and the piano will be delivered at once. We state without fear of contradiction that prices and terms have never been so low anywhere as obtained by joining one of the three big C. & A. piano or player piano clubs. These are bold statements, but easily proved by a little investigation. Our reputation is back of every claim and statement in this announcement. Please bear in mind that our reputation is too dear to make any misstatements for the sake of selling a few pianos, but don't take our word or mere say so. Ask your friends and neighbors who have investigated and already joined one of the three money saving co-operative piano and player piano clubs. Already nearly 80 memberships have been taken out. This in itself proves conclusively that the C. & A. clubs are a tremendous success -summed up in a few words, the club plan means you buy as a dealer buys. You join with several other piano and player piano buyers and practically make one big purchase. In other words, it's the wholesale principle applied to the retail department. Ask any business man if it is cheaper to buy singly or in large quantities-simple, isn't it? Remember, too your purchase is protected in every way. We guarantee quality and we guarantee price. Pianos must prove exactly as represented or we will make same good.

CLUB "A"-MEMBERS secure $325 pianos for $182; pay $5 down and $1.25 weekly.

CLUB "B"-MEMBERS secure $450 pianos for $263; pay $7.50 down and $1.50 weekly.
